Biography

Beau Menard has been involved with building and construction for most of his life. His father was a Professional Land Surveyor, and he would often work with him around job sites. While attending Penn State University, Beau worked on a construction crew building log homes in the summer as well as interning as a designer under the guidance of Professional Engineers.

After receiving his master's degree, Beau worked as a design engineer and draftsman at a small structural design firm in Charlotte, North Carolina. Beau worked with architects and developers designing low to mid-rise building out of steel, concrete, masonry, and wood.

For the past nine years, Beau has worked as an engineering consultant specifically focused on forensic investigations. Working with insurance companies, attorneys, business owners, and homeowners, Beau has helped bring hundreds of cases to resolution. Beau has also served as an expert witness in legal matters providing sworn statements and witness testimony.
